COMMENTS: We walked into the restaurant at 6:13 PM. As we walked toward the host stand, I noticed three hostesses standing behind it. All three smiled and greeted us in some fashion, "Welcome in." The hostess asked how she could help me. I let her know there were two of us. She asked if we wanted to sit inside, outside, or at the bar, and we chose outside. She checked over the seating chart on the monitor and asked us to follow her. She led us to a table, waited for us to be seated, commented on the QR code menu, and told us to "enjoy." After waiting a few minutes at the table and realizing it was hotter than we thought outside, we went back to the host stand. I spoke to a different hostess and asked if we could be seated inside instead. She walked us to a table inside, mentioned the QR code, and also told us to "Enjoy."

COMMENTS: While seated at our table outside, we waited over five minutes with no greeting from a server. However, at our new table inside, Xiomara greeted us 1 minute and 33 seconds after we sat down. She smiled, welcomed us, and introduced herself. Xiomara did ask if we had dined with them before. After we told her we had dined at another location, Xiomara asked if we wanted to start off with something to drink besides water. When my guest ordered a margarita and asked for it without the Tajin on the rim, Xiomara asked if she wanted sugar or salt instead. Xiomara also asked to see my guest's ID. After we ordered our drinks, Xiomara asked if we wanted to start off with some chips and salsa, guac, or queso, or try the trio with all three. When I ordered the chips and queso, she asked if we wanted to add jalapenos or chorizo. When Xiomara took the rest of our order, she repeated back our order and specific toppings and requests. Xiomara also suggested two different margaritas when my guest asked if she could get something other than the margarita she originally ordered, since it was way too sweet. However, Xiomara never offered or suggested dessert. Xiomara was professional and courteous, and we would be pleased to have her as a server again in the future.

COMMENTS: The Pineapple Guava Margarita looked very attractive, but it was way too sweet. My guest even added lime juice to it, and that did not help. The server comped it. However, the Texas Margarita tasted great, as it was not as sweet and was very well-balanced. The Mango and Pineapple mocktail was also attractive, and it tasted great, as it was mixed well and very fruity. The chip and queso provided a nice portion for sharing. The chips were fresh and had a nice texture. The queso was hot and thick but smooth enough for dipping. The esquite tasted excellent, as the corn was fresh and the cheese and other seasonings included complemented the corn very well. The beef quesabirria was a nice portion, as each piece was large and full of cheese and beef. The beef was seasoned well and very tender. The consommé provided a nice complement for dipping. Each of the tacos tasted great, but the fish taco stood out. It contained a large piece of fish, which was breaded and seasoned well. In addition, the fish was hot and tender. The shrimp on the shrimp taco were also hot and tender, and they were seasoned well. The costra taco was unique, with the cheese taco inside a flour tortilla. It was also a large portion and tasted great, as the al pastor meat was seasoned very well, and there was plenty of cheese. We did not order dessert.

COMMENTS: The restaurant was very clean, and I observed an employee sweep multiple times. In addition, the restaurant was very attractive, especially the tile and ceilings. The lighting level in the restaurant was comfortable and warm. The music volume and temperature levels were fine. My guest visited the women's restroom at 7:03 PM. It was well-stocked and clean. I visited the men's restroom at 7:11 PM. It was also well-stocked and clean. Both restrooms were very attractive and smelled nice, with the candles burning in each.

COMMENTS: I first observed the manager near the host stand helping with guests as necessary. I saw him engage guests and help with something by looking at their phones. I also saw him interact with multiple staff members. When my guest asked if she could get a different cocktail, our server took the original cocktail to the manager. He took the cocktail to the bar and tried it with a straw. He also spoke to the bartender about it, and the bartender also tried the cocktail with a straw. However, the manager did not visit our table, and I did not see him visit any other tables during our meal.

COMMENTS: I called the restaurant on March 26th at 9:18 PM. The AI agent greeted me immediately with, "Hi, thanks for calling Real Tacos Duluth. I am Nacho. How may I help you?" I asked if the restaurant offered gluten-free options. Nacho listed several options and then offered to state some of their top sellers. I declined that offer, and Nacho asked if there was anything else he could help me with. I said, "No," and asked to speak to a human. While there was no confirmation from Nacho, I was immediately transferred. After three rings, Carlos answered with, "Thank you for calling Real Tacos Duluth. Carlos speaking." I asked for the best place to park near the restaurant. Carlos let me know that there was parking on the right side of the shopping center. I thanked him and asked what time they closed. He said, "We close at twelve." I thanked him again, and Carlos said, "You are welcome, sir," and hung up. The AI agent, Nacho, was surprisingly human-sounding and very helpful. Carlos was also professional and courteous as well.
