COMMENTS: We were greeted by the host and manager as we walked in the door. Both were friendly. The host walked us to our table. The host gave us menus. We did not have to wait. The host did not tell us about the QR Code, but he did give us actual menus. So we did not really need to use the QR code.

They arrived in seven minutes. We were still eating our appetizer when we got the entrees. I did not feel rushed, but I typically preferred the entrees to come after the appetizer was finished. They were out of the first entree that my guest ordered.

COMMENTS: The dining area and restrooms appeared to be clean. The restaurant felt comfortable, and the music was playing at a good level. We could hear the music, but it was easy to talk to each other. The dining area was appropriately dark for the evening, and I appreciated the little table lights so I could see the menu. The restrooms had plenty of supplies, except a piece of paper near the trash bin.

I did not see him interact with customers other than seating them, or staff other than talking with the host when they were not busy. Other than when he spoke to us as we walked in, the manager did not approach our table or talk to us.

After four rings, the phone was answered. I asked the same question and was disconnected. I called back, and when I was transferred, it was answered by the same employee. He simply said a hurried hello both times. He told me there was no wait, and that was it. He was not friendly.
